

Solutions for Government

Many city, county, and state governments are focused on helping their constituents meet basic needs, but information gaps hamper progress and lead to inefficiencies. Findhelp's search and referral platform can accelerate the work human service agencies are already doing. We partner with justice departments to reduce recidivism, state health and human services departments to improve public health, education departments to support students and families, and more.

- Our analytic tools can identify service gaps and provide actionable insights to inform public policy, strategic programming, and effective funding.
- Platform activity is recorded at aggregate and individual levels, so policymakers and government agencies can better understand and address the most pressing local and regional needs.
- We believe in a consumer-directed privacy model, where individuals control who has access to their personal social care data through transparent, informed consent.

Findhelp supports agencies and departments at the city, county, and state level to simplify the complicated process of connecting people to social care resources.

Who would use Findhelp at your organization?

Any authorized person can use Findhelp to connect constituents to the largest and most active network of community resources available to address the social and non-medical drivers of health, efficiently and at scale. Governments select Findhelp to further serve specific populations, like veterans or expectant mothers, and integrate with constituent portals for individual self-navigation.

How does Findhelp uniquely support government entities?

Improve access and track impact of your funded programs.

Create targeted programs for special populations or specific agencies.

Inform program investments with data insights.

How do current government customers find success with Findhelp?

Findhelp & the Dept. of Education partner to support Missouri families and children.

Medicaid waivers by state: Findhelp and New York.

New partnership to support Delawareans with substance use disorders and mental health needs.

Which state and county government leaders already work with Findhelp?

Want to learn more?

Schedule a demo with one of our team members to see how Findhelp can partner with your organization.